HILL

Famous for Seventy-eight Years

Operating a nursery for three generations is a business that demands great system and absolute accuracy. An evergreen plant is not produced in a year. We have to spend seven to ten years in the production of an evergreen tree of the proper size to transplant at the home. We transplant the little evergreens several times during that period so as to develop their root system to the point where they will grow at once when taken up and shipped away and transplanted at their final home. You don't get inferior trees when you buy Hill's. You get the vigorous, hardy kind that will be a joy forever.

This is the day of Evergreens!

Today there are new uses for evergreens, new colors, new shapes and new styles. The beauty and refinement that you seek for your home is best expressed with the fadeless evergreens.

There are shapes for every planting need. Colors that will delight you with their delicate tones of blue, green and gold. Evergreens are for the entire year. They are fresh and green in winter, when trees and shrubs and flowers have lost their beauty. "Beauty and grace in its form combine, Frost shall not wither a leaf of thine, Fearless and Fadeless Pine."

Modern style in planting needs Evergreens!

EVERGREEN HEDGES

Best for Year Round Service

A hedge should be as attractive and as serviceable in the winter months as in the summer months. Evergreens are the only plants which are permanently attractive and useful.

Hedges may be of almost any shape and size and may serve many different purposes. Arborvitae is the most widely used of Evergreen hedge plants because it can be so easily trimmed into various sizes and shapes.

Evergreens are set from twelve to eighteen inches apart if set in a single row.
